Oh, God, who presided at the council of creation and keeps watch over the children of men, consider those here who are called to make weighty decisions for the life of this city and its people. Make them sensitive to the unspoken needs of their fellow citizens. Make them wise in their deliberations. Grant them the insights necessary to the decisions to be made, and wisdom to ask for more information where required.

Forgive our arrogance of wisdom and pride by which we seek to further our particular causes to the neglect of justice and equal opportunity for all your children. Free us from narrow loyalties and slanted sight to wider sympathies and broader vision.

Then your name is hallowed and your people in this time and place are given daily bread. Such decision-making and actions are hard work, O God. Thus give strength and stamina. Hear our prayer in the spirit of one who walked the land in the garb of a peasant and the spirit of compassion, even Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.
